» take a LOOK Skin

Take a look at your skin. Do you see the tiny holes from your pores? Little hairs? Freckles, maybe? Or a scratch or cut from playing outside?

And what about everything that's under your skin? Blood, muscles, bones. It may sound a little gross. It may sound really cool. But all the things that make up the human body have been studied and drawn for hundreds of years.

If you dare, check out an exhibit called Dream Anatomy at the National Library of Medicine in Bethesda. It features drawings, sculptures, even holograms of the human body and all that is under your skin. For more information, call 301-496-6308.

The library is holding a drawing contest for kids ages 6 to 13. What do you think you look like under your skin? Send your drawing (with name, age, address and phone number) to: National Library of Medicine Art Contest, 8600 Rockville Pike, Room 2W-12, Bethesda, MD 20894.

Drawings must arrive by June 6. Winners will have their drawings printed on note cards and displayed at the library and on the exhibit Web site.
